Derailment in CN yard

Several train cars went off the track in the Canadian National Railway yard in Jasper Feb. 14.

CN did not return multiple calls from the Fitzhugh seeking information about the accident, its cause, what the cars were transporting or any possible injuries that resulted from it.

Immediately after the Saturday incident, a train was moved in front of the derailed cars, obstructing view of the accident from the Jasper townsite.

That same night, a crane was seen in the yard helping put the cars back on the tracks.

CN employees were observed doing work on the section of track where the derailment happened as late as three days after the incident.
