

Cargo spills after CN train derails in southern Manitoba

CBC News The Canadian Press Last Updated: Mar 12, 2015 8:21 AM CT

---

Canadian National Railway says some cargo spilled when 13 cars in an eastbound freight derailed in southern Manitoba.

The accident happened about 7 p.m. Wednesday near the small community of Gregg, about 50 kilometres east of Brandon.

CN says in a release that the cars were carrying refinery cracking stock, a non-regulated commodity, and that one of them spilled some of its load.

The company says the product did not get into any waterway, but an emergency plan was activated and crews are working with Manitoba environmental officials to clean the ground adjacent to the track.

It says there are no reports of injuries and there was no threat to public safety.

CN also says the main track has been reopened following repairs and investigators are continuing to look for the cause of the derailment.